35th World Veterinary Association Congress in 2019

Why attend the 35th World Veterinary Association Congress (WVAC2019) in San José, Costa Rica? The answer is simple: Wonderful Place, Amazing People and World Class Veterinary Medicine.

The WVAC2019 is a great opportunity to visit Costa Rica. This country is a small beautiful piece of paradise located in Central America. It is one of the very few countries in the world without an army. With just 51,000 km², it houses 5% of the world’s biodiversity - a great example of how “life connects all”. Imagine driving from a cloudy rainforest down to an exotic luscious tropical beach within a few hours. Volcanoes, lakes, rivers, mangroves, beaches, cloud forests, rainforests, and diving sites all nearby. Ticos, as Costa Ricans are commonly called, are known to be very warm, very pura vida! Everyone visiting the WVAC2019 will feel right at home in Costa Rica.

The WVA congress will bring together veterinarians interested in excellence from around the globe, and will offer a world-class program on continuing education in veterinary medicine. The scientific program will include three main tracks comprising: Veterinary Public Health, Academia and Investigative Medicine and Clinical Veterinary Medicine. The program will include sessions related to wildlife, small animals and exotic pets, equines, biotronics, regenerative medicine, nanomedicine, and much more. The WVAC2019 will provide a great platform for the veterinary industry in promoting innovation and best products of veterinary medicine. So why attend the WVAC2019? - because you really can’t afford to miss out.
